

The Red Men Museum and Library is an American historical reference museum and research library owned and maintained by The Texas Redmen Foundation, Inc.

The museum exhibits artifacts of historical significance such as:

- A writing desk that belonged to Aaron Burr
- A bugle recovered from the battlefield at Gettysburg.
- A signed viola from WW II USO show days.
- A ring that belonged to silent film star Rudolph Valentino
- A blanket that belonged to Apache warrior Geronimo
- Moccasins that belonged to Chiricahua Apache Chief Cochise

Along with other artifacts pertaining to the Improved Order of Red Men, Degree of Pocahontas, Texas history, American history, and world history are also on display.

The 4,500-volume library has extensive holdings dealing with Texas and Waco history, the Civil War, and World War II. One of its features is a complete set of National Geographic magazines from 1888 to the present. The library also contains books on the American Revolution period, important published papers of U.S. presidents, and complete sets of the published Warren Commission report and the Nuremburg War Criminal Trials report.

The Texas Redmen Foundation, Inc. maintains the Red Men Museum and Library. It is the national museum for the Improved Order of Red Men (IORM) and the Degree of Pocahontas (D of P) and contains reference materials, archival holdings, and exhibits of historical. The Museum and Library are open to the public without cost. We invite you to stop by and look around if you are visiting the area. The state office of the Great Council of Texas is also located here.
